

Freelance Frontend developer

Ivana Setiawan

I am an outgoing and energetic nerd, seeking a freelance project that fits my professional skills and personality. I am passionately in love with front-end shizzle and very much eager to learn new tools & frameworks.

I have been writing code since 2009 and prefer to work with scrum methodology. I believe that TDD is the best way to keep your code bug free, super pretty, modular & accessible.

Skills:

- Modular front-end code
- Web accessibility [Accessible Rich Internet Applications (ARIA)]
- Git
- ES6, jQuery
- Javascript Unit Testing (Mocha, Chai, Sinon)
- Javascript package manager, such as NPM & Yarn
- Build automation tool, such as Gulp & Grunt
- Continuous Integration & Pull Requests

Projects:

UWV (July 2017 - present)

Angular 2 & Front-end testing with Browserstack (using Selenium + Nightwatch)

Funda (August 2015 - July 2017)

My role at funda is as front-end developer in the team New Business. We're the startup team of Funda; in short, our role as a team is to explore and build awesome projects outside the generic funda projects.

Venopi (April 2015 - present)

As a founder, my main responsibility is to ensure that Venopi delivers a great product. My ambition is to make impact by providing good service, while remaining humble.

Mangrove (April 2012 - July 2015)

Front end coding for Mangrove clients such as Hartstichting, Omron, MyLaps, Ahrend, etc.

80beans (April 2010 - April 2012)

Front end coding for web apps (Ruby on Rails) and slicecraft's clients. (Slicecraft is a front-end service, specialized for Ruby on Rails projects. We transform your design to reality with the best practise, modular front-end techniques)

Subset M (August 2009 - July 2010)

Position: Chief Designer and Front end developer

Design & build multiple web and promotional materials for clients, also training interns to assist with several design projects.
